

$$+ = \times$$

Can you find three whole numbers, each between one and ten (inclusive), which give the same answer when you multiply all of them together as when you add them all together?

Can you find a collection of five whole numbers having the same property? (The five numbers need not all be different.)

Find as many collections of five numbers as you can.

Can you find all possibilities?

